FROM THE DESK OF THUY THI NGUYEN

And The Winners Are ...

In speaking with faculty and staff, many of us are appreciative of this week to catch up and prepare for the start of winter quarter on Monday.

Over the past few days, meteorologists have been abuzz discussing the significant storm heading our way. Strong winds and between 2-5 inches of rain is expected. While the worst is expected to occur on Sunday, rain may continue through Monday. Please be patient with your students as they safely navigate their way to campus. Even if the rain has concluded, there may be residual damage from flooding and winds. Students may be late. (I feel like the weather lady, with a weather report of hot climate last quarter also.)

Did you know that our dedicated Campus Police provides hourly parking updates on Twitter for the first 2 weeks of the quarter? I actually enjoy reading those tweets. Students could follow them on @FHDA_Police. Here's a screenshot of the reports on the first day of fall quarter.

We will begin the winter quarter with nearly 12,000 students enrolled at our two campuses and online. Thank you to those who promoted our courses and contacted students this week. Please keep doing so, even over the weekend. Faculty: Due to a number of even more recent marketing efforts, you may see an increase in the number of students hoping to add to your class.

And the winners of this calendar of our adorable resident animals go to three employees who responded within 7 minutes of the last communiqué going out. (Wow!) ... Drum roll . . .

- Sarvjit Dhillon, our campus police CSO who always has such a positive demeanor whenever I see him
- The know-how-to-make-physics-fun, co-founder of The Physics Show, Professor David Marasco
- And the first to respond (within 3 minutes), speed-reader and professed “huge Humane Society supporter”, Honors Chemistry Professor Kathy Armstrong

If you are interested getting a calendar (and donating to a good cause), contact our Veterinary Technology program and its director Lisa Eshman who is very proud of her babies.

Enjoy a safe, dry, warm weekend!
