

Integrated Planning and Budget Committee (IP&B)
Recommendation Regarding the Operations Planning Committee

October 14, 2015

Proposal withdrawn by IP&B

- 1. While it came up in discussions it was not part of the original charge from PaRC.
- 2. There have been some questions raised by Academic Senate as to why OPC voting is considered a conflict of interest.
- 3. If desired, PaRC can issue a charge next spring for IP&B to review along with the rationale for voting membership of PaRC (and consider whether PRC should be given a vote).

Proposal

IP&B recommends that the Operations Planning Committee (OPC) no longer be considered a Core Mission Workgroup and instead be considered as a Committee (similar to the Program Review Committee). Committee Tri-Chairs are invited to attend PaRC but do not vote.

Rationale

OPC's charge is to prioritize and make recommendations regarding college-level funding requests. This evaluative role is different from the Core Mission Workgroups which make proposals related to a specific mission area.

In addition, having OPC Tri-Chairs vote on the recommendations that they have made to PaRC might be seen as a conflict of interest.
