So You Think You're Not a "Math Person"?

Equations make you queasy, percentages may as well be Greek, and your idea of higher math is balancing your checkbook. Numerators, denominators, decimals, fractions, sums: It's enough to make you panic or scream. Or give up. If this describes you, Foothill's Math My Way is ideal for you.

We understand that every student is different, and math can be more of a challenge for some students. At Foothill we offer you a different approach. We've created Math My Way, a hands-on series of self-paced math learning modules that combine patient, caring instruction with a group of students who have similar math skill levels. Along with the small groups and one-to-one attention from your math teacher, there are computer and paper drills, and computer games. This course is Pass/No Pass and permits you to complete in one quarter what originally took two quarters (MATH 250, MATH 200).

Even though you may not be a "math person," you'll still need to complete at least a few math courses during your college experience. At Foothill, we want your math experience to be positive: Our mutual goal is to help you develop math confidence as well as grasp basic math concepts. In fact, we can help you master your math skills, and based on our research you should have an excellent chance of passing the next level of math instruction such as algebra at Foothill and any other college or university.

Maybe your math skills are rusty. Maybe math anxiety is all too real for you. Maybe you just need some extra attention from a caring teacher. If so, Foothill's Math My Way is ideal for you.

Math My Way classes meet Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon in Fall, Winter and Spring Quarters. To participate in Math My Way, you must register concurrently for the MATH 230 and MATH 231 courses. For registration instructions, review this schedule or access www.foothill.edu.
