

4. Act with Integrity

Students cultivate strategies for engaging with complexity, feedback, and challenges in ways that center ethical decision-making, and the ability to act with integrity and empathy in diverse contexts and communities.

Students will deepen their understanding of themselves and how they interact with others, building confidence, resilience, and a sense of purpose. They will learn to navigate challenges in ways that honor differing identities and values in their community. They will build strategies for engaging with complexity, feedback, and difficulty that align with their own needs and capacities while recognizing how their actions affect their community. This growth fosters greater self-reliance, agency, and the courage to engage authentically and responsibly in a complex and evolving world.

Measurable Outcomes

- Demonstrate the ability to reflect on and apply personal strategies for engaging with feedback or navigating challenges.
- Articulate ethical principles and personal values that guide decision-making in a variety of settings.
- Reflect on personal resilience, self-reliance, and ongoing personal development in relation to career and personal decisions.
