

STEM

The Science Learning Institute at Foothill College is proud to be offering a new lecture series highlighting some of the most exciting current topics in STEM – Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics. These events, hosted at Foothill College throughout the year, aim to bring STEM out of the laboratories and into the community. Your partnership will ensure the success of the STEM Lecture Series and our Foothill College students.

Our first speaker for the 2013-14 season is TED talk presenter and noted bioengineering research scientist, Dr. Jonathan Trent, who will be talking about his research with algae to produce energy and treat wastewater, trapping carbon dioxide in the process.
