

Using Current Campus
Resources to Increase
Retention in your Classroom... this quarter!

Foothill College PD Day Winter '15

Retention: What works? Evidence-based practices:

- Class attendance
- Alert and intervention
- Tutoring
- Supplemental Instruction
- Experiential learning
- Goal setting, action planning

Class Attendance

- Class attendance is the BEST predictor of academic performance in college!
- No, really! Better than SAT, high school GPA, standardized admissions tests, study habits and study skills

attendance
MATTERS

Crede, M., Roch, S.G., & Kieszczynka, U.M. (2010, June). Class attendance in college: A metaanalytic review of the relationship of class attendance with grades and student characteristics. Review of Educational Research, 80(2), 272–295. <http://eric.ed.gov/?id=EJ889127>

Increasing student attendance

- Have an attendance policy (and follow it)
 - Regularly remind students about the importance of attending
 - Know your students' names, call on them by name
 - Notice when they miss class
 - Use messaging feature in Etudes (or just email) to send quick message e.g. "We missed you in class today, hope to see you tomorrow."
 - Send a message to students who've not logged in to your online class

Increasing student attendance

- Use in-class activities that require their presence, and count toward grade
 - Group work
 - Blue-book: minute paper / muddiest point
 - Use polling/quizzing technology
 - At beginning of class to get them there on time
 - Assess understanding of pre-class reading assignment (benefit: accountability!)
 - e.g. clickers, PollEverywhere, Drop Thought, etc.

How can you get your hands on the clickers ASAP?

- Students can rent them in the bookstore; OR
 - Several departments/divisions have classroom sets you can check out – ask your Dean/Dept. Chair
 - <http://www.turningtechnologies.com/higher-education>
 - If interested, email holcroftcarolyn@fhda.edu - I am happy to give you a one-on-one demo and walk you through procuring what you need, OR
 - Turning Technologies very responsive – contact at <http://www.turningtechnologies.com/contact-sales> and they will help you get what you need

Alert and intervention

- Early Alert = identifying a struggling student BEFORE it's too late to succeed
 - Intervention:
 - Communicating with student so they realize they're at risk
 - Providing services to mitigate the danger, e.g.:
 - Supplemental instruction

Alert and intervention: what can faculty do NOW?

- Early Alert: ID'ing risk is primarily a faculty responsibility
 - Monitor attendance
 - Provide assessments early and often
 - May be formal, informal, formative or summative (quick to implement!)
 - Communicate clearly with students re: their performance
 - Once faculty know who is at risk, then what?

Alert and intervention: what can faculty do NOW?

- Option 1: Reach out directly to student (face-to-face, phone/email)
 - Direct individual student to other specific resource(s)
 - OK to send student to web page with ALL resources listed, but direct them to the ONE or TWO you think they need first
 - Great to list resources on your syllabus! But personal referral from YOU most likely to have impact
 - Urge use of supplemental instruction

Retention Strategies: Supplemental Instruction

- Goal: bridge classroom and support services
- What is it? How does it work?
- How do faculty find out more?
- What is available on campus?
 - TLC, PSME Center, PTT, EOPS
 - Embedded Tutoring*

*OK, maybe not IMMEDIATE implementation... but it's doable for Spring 2015 Quarter!

Alert and intervention: what can faculty do NOW?

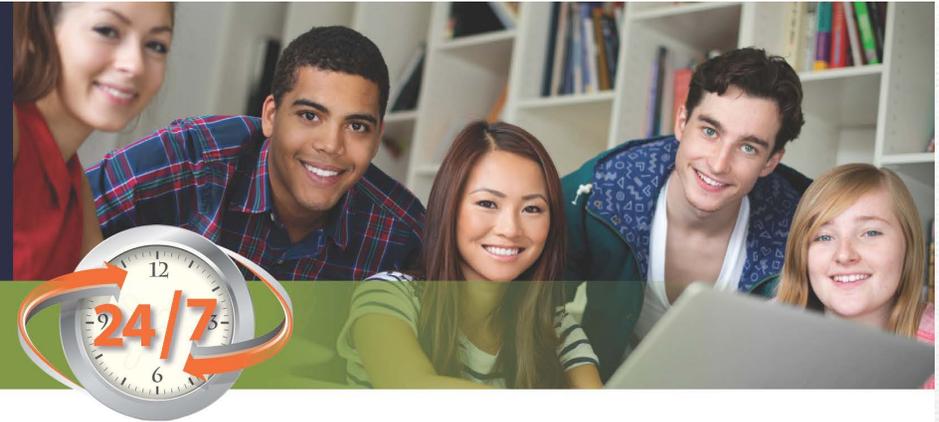

- FHDA is planning district-wide early alert software adoption
 - 3SP Advisory Council will be reviewing, will provide opportunities for feedback

Take advantage!

What else can we do to promote student success?

- Orientation (StudentLingo)
 - remind students to visit a counselor to make/update their ed plans

What else can we do to promote student success?

- Encourage students to make a “game plan” for success in your course
 - Planning designated study times and activities
 - Consider asking them to turn it in
 - Periodically ask how their plan is going, are modifications needed?
